What About Jackson's Flagt
Adjutant-General W. W. Sale has received another letter from the New Jersey authorities in connection with the proposed return of the alleged headquarters flag of General Stonewail Jackson, which the Legislature of New Jersey has voted to return to Virginia.
The New Jersey officials seem to be acting in the best of spirit and have been most courteous, but so far as the Adjutant-General has been able to ascertain, General Jackson had no headquarters flag, and certainly his headquarters were never captured. Jackson had no and certainly his never captured, Bidgood, of the De-
